Introduction:

As a knowledge practice that uncovers strange interdependencies, complex food webs, and bizarre niches for even more bizarre creatures, ecology unsettles us with the alienness of the environment around us. Nonetheless, as a scientific endeavor, ecology is usually framed as a passive gathering of information, an uncovering of relationships that will enable a more complete description of a particular environment. This course asks what happens when ecology becomes a speculative and creative endeavor, an exploration not of a pre-existing system that we can already experience as an environment, but a radically new world. The speculative works that we will examine create imaginative worlds that are experientially alien to us, yet treat them as complex ecological systems. In these novels, films, and other works, ecology becomes more than another layer tacked on to everyday experience. It becomes the primary experience itself: uncovering the hidden interdependencies of a new environment may well be a matter of survival. We will consider ecosystems that have been radically altered by an alien intruder, alien worlds visited by humans who must adapt or die, imaginative reconfigurations of Earth dynamics in a post-petroleum world, and real emergent ecosystems that are hybrids of anthropogenic technology and natural systems. Imaginative encounters with these category-defying environments will challenge us to to think critically about what constitutes an ecosystem, and the implicit boundaries and limitations of ecology as we practice and experience it today.

Grade Breakdown

Attendance and Participation: 20%
Quizzes/Responses: 20%
Paper #1 (ecological lit report): 15%
Paper #2: 20%
Final Exam: 25%

Attendance

Attendance is mandatory. Please note the following:

- More than one absence requires a documented excuse
- More than two unexcused absences will result in a failing participation grade
- Four or more absences may result in being dropped from the course
- Every three “lates” will amount to one absence; you will be counted late if you are not present when attendance is taken at the beginning of each class

In the event of an unavoidable absence, please contact me before class. You are responsible for whatever material you miss, including handouts, assignments, and announcements.

Papers and Late Work
All papers and assignments are due—in hard-copy format as well as an emailed digital copy—on the specified due dates indicated in the schedule below. Any work submitted after this time will be considered “late.” Late work will be accepted up to 5 days after the original due date, with a 1/3 letter-grade-deduction per day late.

Academic Dishonesty
Plagiarism, of all kinds, is a serious offense and will not be tolerated. Plagiarism includes the failure to acknowledge all secondary sources in your work, passing off another person’s work as your own, or submitting a paper written for a previous class. Plagiarism can be obvious or subtle, intentional or a careless mistake. Take your work and documentation seriously: keep track of your sources as you read and take notes; document quotes and paraphrases as you write, not when you are finished, scrambling to find who said what and where. If you are ever in doubt about when and how to acknowledge a source, please ask! At the very least, plagiarism will result in a failing grade for the course and a mark on your academic record, and may result in disciplinary action, including suspension or expulsion.
